

Bloomingtondale Street Market Fair

Saturday, May 30, 2015 8am to 6pm

In front of the Southern Technical College (608 E Bloomingtondale Ave)

Sponsored by the Southern Technical College

This is a fund raising event by the non-profit organization “Quality Life by Education and Research” (QLER). The proceeds go primarily towards a Scholarship for a graduating Bloomingtondale high school senior to receive training in a research lab. QLER is a 501(c3) organization that supports cancer research and education.

Come to the Street Market event to find bargains of all kinds while you are helping a worthy cause. Here are some items at garage sale prices. Brand new men's suits as low as $15, Sewing machines as low as $10, Office chairs $5, Paintings as low as $5, Costume jewelry as low as $2. For a complete list, visit www.qler.org and click the “Events” tab.

How the “Street Market Fair” works. Companies and individuals donate to QLER various items. Then, these items are exchanged at the fair for cash donations. Most items are brand new, some are floor models, some are collectibles, and some are used. Each item will display a suggested donation amount, but in the true spirit of a Street Market Sale (or a garage sale) all counter offers will be considered. There will be a section with no suggested donation amounts. This section will be designated as “Make an Offer”. Some items will display a suggested donation amount as low as 10 cents; however, in order to avoid fractional dollar amounts and to speed up the transactions, the minimum cash donation is $2 and all donations must be whole dollar amounts. That means that you may have to select more than one item. Credit cards are accepted; but the minimum credit card donation is $5. A donor agrees to accept an item “as is” with no guarantees or warranties. Make sure you inspect each item thoroughly before you make your donation. All transactions are final and no returns are accepted.
